

ELKS THRIVING AT TROUT LAKE

Herd In Fine Condition And Contented As A Bunch Of Cattle

"I am sure it would warm the hearts of sportsmen, who contributed to the Wisconsin elk fund, to see the herd of forty-one elk on the state farm at Trout Lake," says Conservation Commissioner Barber. "They are as much at home there as they were in Montana, and as contented as a bunch of dairy cattle."

The herd is still confined in a two-acre corral, surrounded by a high wire fence, to keep them under observation until it is assured that there is no danger of introducing any disease among the deer and other animals on the preserve, according to Mr. Barber. Dr. Lee O'Reilly, veterinarian, of this city, who has inspected the herd several times since the animals arrived from Yellowstone park, reports that all are in excellent health.

It is intended to turn the entire herd out in the forest that covers the state farm, as soon as the veterinarian makes his final report. The farm is fenced and the elk will be retained in the enclosure permanently, or until they have multiplied enough to warrant an attempt to stock the entire northern forest district.

"The three elk that have been on the preserve for three seasons, are thoroughly acclimated," said Mr. Barber. "The experiment with these elk will do well in the Wisconsin climate. It was at first feared that the change in altitude and in feed might bring unfavorable results."

If the plans of the conservation commission carry, Wisconsin will have one of the best game propagation farms in the country. Two years hence, the commission probably will add three moose to the animal collection, and will try to breed up a large herd. Correspondence will also be had with British Columbia sportsmen in a move to obtain at least three caribou, the twin brother of the elk.

HOLD TAILOR FOR GRAND LARCENY

On complaint of Louis Neuville, the Minocqua tailor, George Peroutka was arraigned in municipal court Tuesday on a charge of grand larceny and following his plea of not guilty was bound over to circuit court for trial. He is out under bonds of $1,000.

Peroutka is alleged to have robbed the Neuville tailor shop of a considerable amount of money, some time ago, but on his returning a portion of the cash and agreeing to pay the rest in labor, Mr. Neuville consented not to prosecute. Recently Peroutka, still heavily indebted to Mr. Neuville, it is said, left Minocqua for Ironwood where he was placed under arrest.

ENLARGE NELSON GROCERY STORE

When the carpenters have completed their task of enlarging the grocery store of S. D. Nelson on S. Brown street, Mr. Nelson will have one of the most commodious mercantile establishments in this city.

The partition separating the present grocery store from the storage room is being removed, converting the two rooms into one large store Mr. Nelson has contemplated this improvement for some time past his growing business necessitating more floor space. Other improvements, including a new front, will be made at the store later in the year.

HELPS SETTLERS

That the Rogers bill for the loaning of money for the clearing of land in northern Wisconsin strikes at the root of the problem is the opinion of Assemblyman Western Woodard of Chippewa county. The bill is framed so that a person may make application for the clearing of not to exceed five acres of land at an expense of not to exceed $40 an acre. This expense is charged against the land—is paid off on the installment plan, interest and a part of the principal every year for twenty years. When the bill came up for consideration in the house Assemblyman Woodard said it was one of the few measures which he thought would be of real benefit to the poor settlers of the north.

STATE AID FOR GUARDS' WIVES

Madison, Wis., March 27.—Members of the finance committee are planning to introduce a bill for relief of the wives and children of guardsmen who may be called into active service. The purpose of the bill will be to provide direct state aid in the form of pensions, and thus obviate the necessity which arose when the troops were called to the Mexican border, under which commercial clubs and other organizations accumulated funds to care for soldiers' families. The desire is that the state take charge of the situation at once to avoid any appearance of action prompted by charity. In most cases, the families of soldiers were looked after while they were on the border, but there is a very strong sentiment here that in the future such aid should be provided directly by the state.

MOBILIZE THIRD WIS. REGIMENT

Order Companies To Recruit To War Strength—150 Men

Adj. Gen. Orlando Holway Monday morning sent notice to the different companies of the Third regiment of infantry, Wisconsin National guard, ordering immediate mobilization at their home armories.

The war department notified the adjutant general of the call for the Third regiment. This was the first regiment ordered out and therefore is the first one to be called back into the field.

In a statement Monday, Adj. Gen. Holway said:

"These men will be assembled in their home armories and further instructions will be issued by Geo. H. Barry, Chicago commander for the Western department."

The Third regiment includes a band section stationed at Viroqua, a non-commissioned staff section stationed at Eau Claire, a mounted orderly section stationed at Viroqua, a machine gun company stationed at Rice Lake, a supply company at Superior and three battalions of twelve companies stationed at La Crosse, Sparta, Tomah, Menomonie, Eau Claire, Superior, Hudson, Neillsville, Portage, Wausau and Mauston.

Companies are ordered to recruit at war strength—150 men. The Third regiment will probably be mobilized in Milwaukee, according to latest advices. It is expected some large building will be provided for the purpose.

Adj. Gen. Orlando Holway has been appointed temporary brigadier general, pending the appointment of a permanent officer to command the Wisconsin brigade.

CALLED HENCE

After an illness of less than two weeks, Joseph Pelletier, an old Rhinelander resident, died at his home on the south side Sunday. A disease of the spine was the cause of his death.

Deceased leaves six children all of whom live in this city. They are Mrs. Earl Ruggles, William, Joseph, George, Phillip and Omer. The funeral was held from St. Mary's church Wednesday morning.

The Pelletier family settled in Rhinelander twenty years ago, and after a residence here of ten years, moved to the east where they made their home for several years, again locating here about three years ago.

Mr. Pelletier was a good citizen and friend and his passing is the source of much regret. Sympathy is extended to the family.

A FINE TROPHY

Rhinelander trap shooters gaze covetously at the handsome trophy in the form of a silver loving cup, which adorns one of the display windows of the Reardon pharmacy. The cup will be awarded for high score in the Wausau Game and Gun Club tournament in Wausau on Memorial Day. It is the gift of H. L. French of Wausau. All amateur trap shooters who belong to the Wisconsin Trap Shooters association and who live in Oneida, Lincoln, Forest, Vilas, Langlade, Marathon, and Wood counties are entitled to compete for the cup.

FAVOR DELIVERY PLAN

Forty merchants of Stevens Point favor the establishment of a co-operative delivery system for that city. A committee was named to work out a tentative plan.

OLD GLORY

Your flag and my flag, and how it flies today,
In your land and my land and half a world away!
Rose-red and blood-red the stripes forever gleam;
Snow-white and soul-white—the good forefathers' dream
Sky-blue and true-blue, with stars to gleam aright—
The gloried guidon of the day, a shelter through the night

Your flag and my flag! and, oh, how much it holds—
Your land and my land—secure within its folds!
Your heart and my heart beat quicker at the sight
Sun-kissed and wind-tossed—red and blue and white.
The one flag—the great flag—the flag for me and you—
Glorified all else beside—the red and white and blue!

Your flag and my flag! to every star and stripe
The drums beat as hearts beat and fifers shrilly pipe!
Your flag and my flag—a blessing in the sky;
Your hope and my hope—it never hid a lie!
Home land and far land and half the world around,
Old Glory hears our glad salute and dripples to the sound!

ASSEMBLE GUARD AT STATE CAMP

Adjutant General Does Not Know Where Men Will Be Called

If the Wisconsin National Guard is called into active service, as Adjutant General Holway believes it will be, the companies will be mobilized in the home station for a few days and then transferred to Camp Douglas.

General Holway was asked whether the Wisconsin companies would be kept on duty in this state or transferred for duty in some other state.

"I cannot say where the Wisconsin companies will be placed on duty," declared General Holway. "That will be a question for the United States military officials to decide."

Officials from Superior have suggested that the companies of Ashland and Superior might be kept on duty at lake ports after the opening of navigation. General Holway said on this point he could make no definite statement, because the national government would have, in this matter, under control. He did say that he expected notice at any time, asking for immediate mobilization.

Adjutant General Orlando Holway said that satisfactory progress was being made in the work of recruiting the units of the guard from 4,500 officers and men to 10,400 officers and men, as provided under the new federal law on the subject. Twelve troops of cavalry, consisting of 1,300 men and officers, were in process of formation, and the required number of men for most of the troops already have been secured.

COMPANY MAKES GREAT SHOWING

Major Miles Is Delighted With Annual Inspection Of Men

Before a large audience at the Armory Monday night Major P. L. Miles, U. S. A., made the annual inspection of Company L. The inspection was conducted in much less time than is usually required and was generally conceded to have been the best since the company was organized.

The men made a brilliant showing and it could be readily observed that their border duty had greatly added to their training. While Major Miles will not make his official report until later in the year he did not hesitate to express his pleasure over the success of the inspection.

Monday afternoon Major Miles looked over the Armory property and company equipment, which was in excellent condition. From here he went to Ashland to inspect the Ashland company.

Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. Hanson of Hawkins brought the latter's child to St. Mary's hospital for treatment Tuesday. Dr. Baker of Hawkins accompanied them.

ROAD MEET AT ASHLAND FRIDAY

F. E. Parker Will Respond To Mayor's Address Of Welcome

Three hundred delegates are expected at the road congress at Ashland, Friday, March 30, and Saturday, March 31. Frank E. Parker, of this city, president of the Wisconsin Highway association, will respond for the delegates to the address of welcome by Mayor Dennis. The program follows:

Sergeant of Madison, who has watched the interests of the state in road building in Ashland and Bayfield counties several years, will talk on the subject of "Instruction to Foremen." He will also lead the discussion later on in the program on "Road Construction."

"Opportunities and Responsibilities of Highway Foremen and Supervision of Towns," will be discussed by W. E. Dillon of Butternut, highway commissioner of Ashland county, and Hugh Jeffries, commissioner of Burnett county.

Friday's program will close with a general discussion of road construction led by Commissioners T. L. Irvin of Washburn county, Andrew Eklund of Marinette county, and G. G. Nelson of Price county.

C. J. Morrisett, county commissioner of Douglas county will talk on concrete culverts and a discussion on this subject will follow led by Commissioners Frank E. Parker of Oneida county, and Collet of Sawyer county, and Wener of Iron. The program will close with a discussion led by John Sundell of Bayfield county on maintaining roads.

CREAMERY DOING LARGE BUSINESS

Local Plant Compares Favorably With Famous Barron Creamery

The Barron, Wis., creamery, the largest co-operative creamery in the world, had business last year amounting to more than $150,000, and the managers confidently expect that it will pass the half-million mark this year. In 1902 this creamery made 70,116 lbs. of butter, and last year made 1,508,820 lbs., for which they received $417,471.11. The average price paid for butter was 37.5¢. They have 821 patrons and 456 stock holders, which shows what can be done by farmers—or anyone else for that matter—when they get together. We hope to be able to give our readers more concerning this most interesting institution in the near future.

LISTS OUT EARLY

Bradley Taylor has already commenced work of securing advertising for the 1917 premium list of the Oneida County Agricultural Society.

Contrary to former custom the fair officials plan to publish the list much earlier this year so that it will be distributed to the public several months before fair time.

A thorough canvass of the business men will be made by Bradley in anticipation of obtaining more advertising contracts for the book than ever before.

CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY

Tuesday marked the sixtieth anniversary of the birth of Louis Wagner, one of Rhinelander's old and esteemed residents. That evening members of the Canton and their wives gathered at the Wagner home where several enjoyable hours were spent at cards. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. M. Sweet and Mrs. H. J. Danfield.

A fine smoking set was presented to Mr. Wagner by the guests.

INSTITUTE FOR ODANAH INDIANS

Ashland, Wis., March 27.—What will be practically the first Indian farm institute in Wisconsin will be held on the Bad River Indian reservation Tuesday to Friday inclusive. Other meetings have been held, and for the past two or three years the Bad River Chippewas have held annual agricultural fairs in September, but the institute this week, will be conducted along the same lines as similar schools of instruction are conducted in white communities. It will afford the Indian farmers of the Bad River reservation valuable knowledge in how to run their farms, how to care for their stock, and how to get the best results in an agricultural way.

It does not appear to be particularly known, that the north Wisconsin Chippewas are a progressive and improving people as compared with many other Indians. There is not a blanket Indian on the Bad River Reservation. There has not been a blanket Indian seen in Ashland in over a quarter of a century. Under the enlightened encouragement of such commissioners as Cato Sells, the Lake Superior Chippewas are rearing fine stock, creating first class farms and are proud of their farms, and their live stock and their homes. They have half a dozen million dollars in the banks to their credit from the sale of pine, and are the richest band of Indians in the United States, in their total bank deposits.

The Indians is a natural horseman, and with a little encouragement, they do wonders with cattle and horses. The greatest detriment to their advancement, unquestionably, is the presence of saloons in "wet" communities adjacent the reservations. Many of the Indians are full-fledged, sit on juries, and a full blooded Chippewa is a member of Guster Post G. A. R. a veteran of the Civil war.

HOLD SPUD SHOW AT CAPITOL CITY

1917 Convention Of Potato Growers At Madison In November

The executive committee of the Wisconsin Potato Growers' Association recently decided to hold the next State Convention and Potato Show at Madison on November 19 to 21. The Convention and Potato Show will be held at the Live Stock Pavilion of the Agricultural College and will co-operate with the Wisconsin Potato Growers' Association in arrangements.

It is expected that twenty-five counties in Wisconsin will be represented in competitive exhibits and with delegates. The unusual, favorable facilities offered at the Agricultural College will permit of a complete showing of commercial exhibits as well as all the regular classes of potatoes.

The regular Association Premium List and special announcements will be issued to the potato growers of the state by June 1st this year. Preliminary arrangements are now under way. Special potato meetings are being held in several sections of the state. This will be the most representative gathering and largest potato convention in the history of the Wisconsin Potato Growers' Association. At each annual convention of the Association many delegates from the potato growing sections of America attend. Arrangements will be made to secure the participation in the program of many men of national reputation.

FARMERS MEET AT PINE LAKE

Attention is again called to the Farmers' meeting to be held at the Pine Lake Town hall, just north of Rhinelander, on next Saturday, March 31st. There will be excellent programs carried out during the day.

In the forenoon, Mr. Griswold will talk on "Raising the Dairy Heifer" and Mr. Bradley will talk on "Selection and Care of the Brood Sow." In the afternoon Mr. Griswold will talk on "Feeding Dairy Cows" and Mr. Bradley will talk on "Hog Raising in a System of Dairy Farming."

Farmers living near Rhinelander cannot afford to miss these meetings. Both Mr. Griswold and Mr. Bradley are classed among the most successful farmers of the state and their ideas gained through practical experience, will be most profitable to every one.

BE CAREFUL IN CROSSING TRACKS

In its "safety first" campaign to check the common practice of walking on railroad tracks the Chicago & Northwestern railway company issues the following bulletin:

The report of the Interstate Commerce Commission, for the years ending June 30th, 1915, and 1916, that:

1915—
1,085 persons were killed,
2,081 persons were injured;

1916—
1,396 persons were killed,
3,257 persons were injured;

While walking or driving over railway tracks at highway crossings in the United States.

Engineers are required to keep proper lookout and to give warning by sounding the whistle and ringing the bell when approaching crossings, and the company is doing all it can to prevent accidents of this kind.

Do you realize your responsibility in this matter and are you doing your part?

Surely your life and the lives of your relatives and friends who are riding with you are worth many times the trouble and time required to stop and look and listen before crossing the tracks.

At crossings where there are two or more tracks, after passage of train nearest driver, care should be taken to ascertain that no trains are approaching from either direction on other tracks.

There never has been and never would be an accident of this kind if the occupants of automobiles and other vehicles would stop and look and listen before crossing the tracks.

A life or a limb once gone,
can never be brought back

SHOOTING PROHIBITED

The United States Department of Agriculture has received inquiries from many sportsmen in the Middle West in regard to spring shooting of waterfowl. In response the department has made the following public announcement:

Under the Federal regulations there is a closed season from February 1 to September 6, inclusive, each year throughout the United States on waterfowl and other migratory game birds. The season for hunting is further restricted in various parts of the country to periods not exceeding three and one-half months. The open season on waterfowl in the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, and Missouri is from September 16 to December 31, inclusive, and it is unlawful to hunt or kill waterfowl in those states at any other time. Persons committing violations of the regulations may be prosecuted at any time within three years after an offense is committed.

MORAN EXPLAINS PELICAN TAXES

To Town of Pelican People:

In 1915, the electors at the annual school meeting set aside as a sinking fund the sum of $3,600 for the purpose of creating a fund to build a graded high school, providing that the same would be a cheap or system of educating children than under the present plan of rural schools. After an investigation it was determined that the present system was a great deal more reasonable to taxpayers, therefore, when the electors at the annual town meeting in 1916 in making their levy for the running expenses of the town for the ensuing year, decided to use the said sinking fund, $3,600, and transfer the same to the general school fund of the town. In doing this there was no need, with the balance on hand, of levying any school fund for the year. This is the whole and sole cause why taxes were moderate in the town of Pelican this year. There is no individual entitled to any credit as it was the above action of the electors that accomplished this purpose. I am simply writing this article at this time to call the electors' attention and freshen their minds that the above are true facts as known by any and all electors who were at both meetings.

WILL BATTLE INFANT PLAGUE

Anticipating the spread of infantile paralysis in Wisconsin next summer, the four laboratories of hygiene affiliated with the state board of health, will aid in diagnosing the disease in all cases where desired. Dr. W. D. Stovall, director of the state laboratory, says the spinal fluid of patients will be examined for suspected poliomyelitis whenever submitted by a physician. The state laboratory is located in Madison, the branch at Rhineland, and co-operate laboratories at Superior and Fond du Lac.

Dr. Stovall pointed out the danger of the spread of this disease through communication between states, and appealed for co-operation with the laboratories by physicians for obtaining a positive diagnosis as early as possible.

NOTICE TO OUR CUSTOMERS

We beg to call the attention of those of our customers who have in the past got their milk, cream, buttermilk and butter from our creamery plant, to our ad in this paper.

We have decided to discontinue all retail sales at the Creamery. The constant demand upon the time of our employees to take care of these orders, means a constant interruption to their work and the loss of time amounts to more than the profit on the sales, and we have therefore arranged with Mrs. A. L. Davis' store to carry a full line of our products, and we believe that it will be fully as convenient to the majority of the residents who live near the Creamery to go to the store.

To properly take care of the milk and cream, Mrs. Davis has installed ed a refrigerator and we can assure you a first class quality and prompt service.

We thank all those who have patronized us in the past and sincerely hope no inconveniences will result to our customers by this change.

WANTED JACK PINE PULPWOOD

B. L. HERR Rhineland, Wis.

MR. VOTER AND TAXPAYER—

"The Tax Levy will have the distinction of being the largest ever made in the history of the City. Last year, to meet part of the deficiencies brought about by the closing of saloons, the levy was raised to 47 1/4." (From the Omaha Bee commenting on the financial result of local Prohibition.)

What effect will "Dry" have on Rhinelander? We call your attention to these bare facts: Rhinelander will lose $13,500 now received for licenses.

Rhinelander now receives $16,163.03 annually in taxes from liquor dealers and allied interests. Approximately one-ninth of the entire amount of the City's taxes. Most of this will be lost. How except by higher taxes will this deficit be met?

Rhinelander liquor dealers pay $15,474.00 per year for rent.

Rhinelander saloons occupy 27 buildings, and if these buildings are vacated, which will result, if supply and demand mean anything, in real estate values being decreased.

Rhinelander liquor dealers pay approximately $60,000 annually in wages. If you vote "Dry" some other means of employment for the men drawing this $60,000 must be supplied.

Rhinelander will have thrown out of business at least 27 employers and many more employees who are combined customers for the butcher, grocer, hardware dealer, baker, cigar dealer, ice dealer, plumber and many other similar trades.

Mr. Voter, you thought your taxes were high this year. If the City votes "Dry" next Tuesday, doesn't it stand to reason that your taxes will be still higher in order to make up for the certain loss of $13,500 now received from licenses and the almost certain loss of the greater part of $16,000.00 more, now paid by liquor dealers in taxes? Just when Rhinelander is beginning to forge ahead, do you want to risk setting it back by an enormous tax rate and a possible depression in general business conditions?

Do you believe in a square deal? If so, remember that the Rhinelander Brewery, the Rhinelander liquor dealers and other similar dealers are lawful dealers, so held to be by the Supreme Court, dealers whose business has been built up by years of effort under your sanction and permission. Prohibition will undoubtedly mean destruction of the business and property of these dealers. If your business was entirely wiped out by legislation would you not feel that you were entitled to compensation? When the state takes your land for a public purpose, it pays you just compensation. If you favor the destruction of the property of the brewery and liquor dealers as a public benefit, the public school should be willing to pay for the property destroyed.

The various lines of business which would be affected by a "Dry" vote, including the entire City of Rhinelander, would have from April 3rd, to June 30th, less than three months in which to prepare for the change. Even the "Dry" advocates of the state realize that time is needed to re-organize conditions and have therefore provided in the law authorizing a state wide vote on this "Wet" and "Dry" issue for April, 1918, next year, that a "Dry" vote at that time would not take effect for two years thereafter, or until 1920. Here in Rhinelander, however, 143 persons, 50 of whom pay no taxes whatsoever, and all of whom pay only $5,488.75 to the City in taxes, ask you to wipe out almost six times that amount of the City's income almost immediately.

What substitute is offered by the "Drys" for the saloon? Bishop Charles D. Williams, of the Episcopal Diocese, said at a meeting of ministers recently: "Poverty more frequently drives men to drink than drink drives men to poverty. The saloon is the poor man's club. What have the "Drys" to offer in its place? Are we going to deprive the working man of his glass of beer and then fold our arms? In Bangor, Maine—a prohibition state, 60 saloons are running openly because sentiment so decrees."

Mr. Voter, consider these suggestions carefully, not from a vague idealistic stand point, but from a practical stand point. Do you really feel that local prohibition will be enough better than the regulation that we have now to offset the loss in licenses, taxes, wages etc? Consider the words of Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor: "Prohibition has not, and does not, make men abstainers or ever temperate, but in addition to increasing intemperance, makes men, (otherwise law-abiding,) law breakers. The Liquor Business requires just and fair regulation—Prohibition is unfair, unjust and makes for unfreedom and is Anti-Americanism."

W. W. CARR, Secretary.

Note:—We have succeeded in placing two charges in the National Home during the year, both of which would have been a very heavy expense on the fund had we not succeeded in so placing them, one of our charges has died during the year and one moved from the County permanently and another has moved temporarily and will not receive aid. One has been added to the list deserving assistance. We have one charge which in the opinion of the commission will be of considerable expense owing to the severe illness of the charge and the distance from medical assistance. In case of this kind we would like very much to advise with some committee of your Board.

Hurley.—Mrs. Barto Varda, a resident of the Cary location, received burns from a kerosene stove Wednesday morning which caused her death two hours later. She had just recently recovered from an illness and was alone in the house at the time and had got up from bed to warm some water on a kerosene stove, when in some manner her clothes and hair became saturated with kerosene and ignited; she rushed out of the house and threw herself in the snow and later neighbors rushed to her assistance, but the burns were so severe that death ensued. She was 46 years of age and has resided at the Cary location for many years.

Indications here are that lake navigation will begin later this season than usual owing to the heavy ice field. In northern Lake Michigan ice is reported to extend completely across the lake at times. Conditions at various northern ports are reported to the weather bureau as follows: Duluth harbor ice, 22 inches; in fields extends beyond vision; Bayfield harbor ice 12 to 24 inches; no open water visible; Washburn, harbor 30 inches; Ashland harbor ice 30 to 36 inches; Portage, Canal entrance gorged solid; Manitowoc, upper harbor ice 30 inches.

Chief of Police Kerr has been reinstated in that office, according to an announcement by Mayor A. W. McLeod, who said that the reinstatement is pending the complete clearing up of the agitation which resulted in the officer's suspension. Chief Kerr has been off duty since his arrest on a warrant charging he had accepted "protection money" from a "blind pigger." This was about a month ago, and the case against him was dropped last week when the witnesses against him could not be found.

Iron River.—Two unidentified woodsmen, evidently in a stupor induced by imbibing freely of intoxicating liquor, selected a curve on the South Shore railway track, one-half mile past of Gurney, as a place for a rest Tuesday afternoon, for when the west bound passenger rounded the curve the engineer was horrified to see the men lying there basking in the sun. The train was then but a few rods distant, and it was impossible to stop it before the work of destruction had been wrought. One of the men was instantly killed and the other so badly injured that he died three hours later while being carried on the train to Superior.

Antigo.—Determined to make one more effort to enroll a sufficient number of young men to assure a militia company in Antigo the promoters have decided to open a recruiting office in the city hall. The office will be open every evening for a week and the Sons of Veterans drum corps will be stationed outside to remind the forgetful of their privilege to enroll for the defense of the country. Not more than a scant half dozen of the faithful turned out to the meeting Friday night. It is to be hoped that Antigo will not go on record as offering no militia company before compulsory military service is established.—Journal.

New London.—George McDermott, a farmer near here stated that he now has in sacks ready for shipment 600 bushels of choice potatoes. "I raised as good a crop last year as I ever had but I only planted five acres," said he. When asked how he escaped the early frost that played havoc with the potato crop he told

Halls Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Halls Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. THE NEW NORTH
The New North Printing Co.
Entered at the Postoffice at Rhinelander, Wis., as Second Class
Mail Matter
MARCH 20, 1917

"For the cause that lacks assistance:
For the wrong that needs resistance:
For the future in the distance:
And the good that we can do."

WANTED—Boy to learn printers' trade at New North office.

The candidate who has no time to tear down his opponent is worth thinking about.

Charles P. Cary is a candidate for re-election to the office of State Superintendent of Schools. Vote for him election day.

Beware of the candidate who spends much time tearing down his opponent. If this critic got the office he would be well versed himself in many ways to do wrong.

The man out of office can talk more freely than the man in office, but it is no proof he will do better work than the man in office if he gets the job. He is talking for the office.

Roulet D. Marshall is a candidate for re-election to the supreme bench. He will be seventy years old when his present term expires. He is rich, needs no office at the hands of the people. His opponent, Walter C. Owen, the other candidate is a young man; he served six years as state senator and four years as attorney general. He has made a splendid record in public office, and has always been impartial between the classes. He should be chosen April 3rd as a member of the state supreme court.

The man who is in office should be returned to office if he has aimed to do his duty and done it well. A man in office has made mistakes, so would you. The opponent who dwells upon the mistakes of the man in office is to be feared if elected. He is simply holding up his opponent to scorn to get his job. Beware of the slightest remarks of an opponent.

Every citizen should go to the polls next Tuesday and vote for whom and for what he thinks is right, irrespective of influences of others.

Assemblyman Rogers voted with a minority last week to prevent the people of the state from doing their own business and this after much talking on Mr. Rogers' part that he would vote on the other side of the question. Mr. Rogers should be carefully watched the rest of the session of the legislature to learn the manner of man he is. If Assemblyman Rogers is unwilling to let the people vote on important questions, we should know it.

If Assemblyman Rogers is afraid to let his constituents vote on great and important issues, his constituents should not trust him.

We have it from members of the registration boards that a single man in many instances has registered long lists of men to vote in Rhinelander April 3rd. A man has no right to vote here unless he is here to make this place his permanent residence. This matter has been settled in the courts. Rhinelander people should run Rhinelander affairs. We hope a proper watch will be made at each polling place election day, and the illegal voters not allowed to cast their ballots.

We, who are permanent residents should insist on calling out floaters and run our own business.

Next Tuesday (April 3rd) the voters of Oneida county are to decide whether we are to have a good system of roads or not. The roads contemplated by the bond issue will be of great value to all classes. These roads will bring more business to the merchants in town. They will aid the farmers in marketing their products. They will bring a larger number of people into the county who will spend their money here. They will furnish much more employment for the laboring man. In other words, good roads make a county more inhabitable and of more value. Every person interested in the improvement and betterment of Oneida county should vote for the road bond issue next Tuesday. Put a cross in the square after votes on the pink Road Referendum Ballot.

DRY KANSAS

(Contributed by a Tatpaver)
Chas. M. Sheldon of Topeka, Kansas, who spoke in Madison last week on the dry issue read a letter from Governor Arthur Capper of Kansas in part as follows:
"Kansas sends more boys and girls to public school, to the universities and colleges in proportion to population (census 1910) than any other state."
"Kansas is one of the two states in the union having the smallest number of persons who cannot read and write—less than two per cent of its population. It is interesting to note, too, that the other state is a prohibition state."
"Kansas has forty counties, out of a total of a hundred and five, which did not send a prisoner to the state penitentiary last year."
"With one exception Kansas has the lowest death rate of any of the states included within the registration area recognized by the federal government. Again the exception is a prohibition state."
"The prison rate for the entire country is 121 to the 100,000 population; in Kansas its fifty."
"Thirty-two counties abandoned their county poor farm last year."
"The liquor interests say that prohibition hurts business and retards the development of a state. The live stock orchard and agricultural crops of Kansas for 1916 amounted to more than $675,000,000—an increase of more than $25,000,000 in one year. A most substantial answer, I should say."
"Kansas is one of the few states which has no state bonded indebtedness—the last outstanding bond being taken up more than a year ago."
"As a matter of fact, there is no sound argument against prohibition, either moral or economical, not even the argument that it increases taxes, which it does not do."

"The man out of office can talk more freely than the man in office, but it is no proof he will do better work than the man in office if he gets the job. He is talking for the office."

IN SEATTLE

C. B. Blethem, editor of the Seattle Times, who fought a dry Seattle, says in part, "after one year, crime has been reduced almost one half. The money formerly passing over bars is almost entirely spent for better living, benefitting every person it reaches, beginning with man, wife, and children, and running through all the lines of trade and particularly through the middle-size and smaller shops, and all of it staying at home and much of it going into savings deposits. With the raising of the living standard comes a series of other benefits. Efficiency in all lines of business has been greatly increased. This begins in the lumber and construction camps, where from 30 to 50 per cent more work is now accomplished with the same crews. It appears on the docks, where a full day's labor is had every Monday instead of practically none and a full day's labor is had Tuesday instead of the former half. It is visible in the records of industrial accidents, now cut down to less than half the average of wet years. It shows up in every business house in the large cities in the efficiency and contentment of clerks and workmen."
The sum total of human happiness has been increased immeasurably.

"BOB" DEFENDS HIS ACTION

With the suggestion that the United States call a conference of neutral nations, Senator Robert M. La Follette, leader of the "twelve willful men" who blocked the armed neutrality bill, vigorously defended his position in the forthcoming issue of his magazine, declared the bill means war.
La Follette denies he "filibustered" against the bill. He says he did all in his power to defeat the measure "insofar as permitted by the tyrannical action of a majority," which resorted to "a perversion of the rules to prevent speaking against the bill."

By "virtually placing American guns and gunners under British admiralty orders, the bill means war," he asserted.
The action of the president in attempting to "force the bill thru in the last hours of congress," is criticized by La Follette. Authority that leaves it in the discretion of the president to make war is conferred in the bill, he claims.
"It was the evil system of one man power and secret diplomacy that plunged the helpless people of Europe into war."

By a call to neutrals at this time for a conference and a mere suggestion that food and other supplies would be withheld from both sides impartially, the belligerents would be forced to observe the principle of the freedom of the seas, he asserts.
Such a conference, even now, La Follette believes would render the greatest service to ourselves, "to humanity and to the world."

THE MAN IN THE STORM

By OLIVER GRAY.

"Janet, dear, won't you please come to the hotel with us and stay all night! We've stayed out so late at shows and things we can't let you go so far alone now."

"No, Sally, thanks just the same. I'll take the subway and be home in no time. I live so near to the car, you know."

"It isn't near—it's several blocks and you shan't go alone. Henry will certainly go with you."

"Henry certainly will not. You two are so tired doing New York now you walk as if you were on pegs, and Henry's eyes look like holes burned in paper for want of sleep. We girls get accustomed to going around alone, and you needn't think I'm a martyr."

"Well, little sister, all right," acquiesced Sally. "You are too independent for comfort, though, sometimes. This musical career in the first place is all—"

Janet laid her hand over her sister's mouth. "Hush! Here we are at the station. Now good-night."

She had been just long enough in the metropolis to get over the wonder of it, then over the disgust of it, for there is always reaction, and to take the philosophical view that is best. Her music and little else really interested her. She had her wagon hitched to the star of a musical career and she was willing to work and sacrifice everything for its sake.

Hartley Howard had insisted that his love for her counted for more than music, and it had been a long, hard fight to convince herself that he was wrong. She had asked her sister about him that night so indifferently that even Sally's sharp eyes were deceived.

"He's doing pretty well, Janet," she had answered. "They say he's going with Mary Porter, but I don't know for sure. Think how funny it will be some day, sister, when you're away up in grand opera and just home from the courts of Europe to have Hartley present you to Mary, fat and forty, and with a family of six to cook and sew for!" She had meant it kindly, for she thought Janet was looking a bit white and peaked, but her words had brought no answering smile.

"It seems a good piece ahead," sighed Janet.

She thought it all over now in the car and she was very close to the line which separates will from weakness. Was she getting homesick? Then she thought of the European courts and of darning stockings and cooking. The brave color came back to her cheeks and she sat very erect. She had chosen a career and she was going to make good.

The train stopped at her station and she got off. Others got off other cars and went up the steps of the subway exit to scatter at the top in different directions. A fine sleet had started to fall and the wind which was blowing a gale sent the fine, icy particles into her eyes. She turned, up her fur collar, tightened her veil, and, burrowing her face into her muff, started up the street.

At the same time a man started after her. At first Janet paid little attention to him, but as she left the lights behind and plunged into the darkness ahead she felt uneasy. She walked faster but the man soon overtook her, walking beside her and suiting his step to hers. Janet kept straight ahead, never so much as glancing aside. But she knew that he, too, had his head down against the wind and the collar of his great overcoat was almost touching his hat.

"If you're afraid I shall be glad to take you home," he said finally, his voice coming in fitful jerks as the wind caught it.

"No, thank you! I'm not afraid," said Janet as firmly as she could with her teeth chattering.

"But I'm going to the ferry and I'll just walk with you, if you don't mind."

No answer, but he was not discouraged. He kept right beside her.

"I'm not accustomed to being out so late!" She decided it was best to let him know that she was a proper, law-abiding person. "I was with some friends from the West and wouldn't let them bring me home." She thought he would go then, but he didn't.

"I'm from the West, too," he said.

"This isn't very far West," she amended. "It's only in western Pennsylvania!"

"Why, that's where I'm from!"

"Is that so?" Janet was interested.

"What is the place?"

"Not far from Pittsburgh. A town called Lockton."

"Why, that—whom do you know in Lockton?"

"Oh, everybody. Do you know anyone there?"

"Yes."

"Do you know the Moores?" he asked eagerly. "Do you know Janet Moore?"

Janet caught his sleeve and turned him sharply. "Hart!" she cried. "Don't you know me?"

"Janet!"

And suddenly European courts and darning were forgotten. He hadn't asked her if she knew Mary Porter. He still loved her and she had no will to resist.

"I'm going home, Hart!" she said in the shelter of the entrance where they could talk.

"Why, Janet?"

"Oh, to marry you, I guess. Don't you want me?"

But the last words were lost in the depths of the big overcoat.

BEDA MACKIN IS CONTEST WINNER

Receives Prize Offered By W. C. T. U. For Best Essay

The prize essay contest under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. was held at the high school Saturday evening, March 24.

Five high school pupils, and thirteen pupils from the 7th grade of the Central school had written essays on subjects dealing with scientific facts as to effects of alcohol and tobacco.

The essays showed much careful work and preparation on the part of both pupils and teachers and were delivered in a manner that would be creditable to pupils of much higher grade. Of the high school pupils who wrote, Beda Mackin received first prize, Isabel Nustel, second, and Doris Crofoot third. Those receiving honorable mention were Clarence McMillan and Kyle Ashton. Of the 7th grade essays, first prize was awarded to Ethel Horn, second to Ella Trumble, third to Emma Trumble, and the following received honorable mention:

Marcella Johnson, Ruth Goddard, Inger Christanson, Earl Westcott, Lillian Bergeson, Ethel Leland, Janice Payne, Anna Hanna, Blanche Anderson, Edith Horn.

The Trumble Twins, Emma and Ella sang "Sleep My Babykin" in a very pleasing manner, and "I Love the U. S. A." and "Nobody Knows the Way I Vote" was sung by Hugh Mackin.

Miss Kell of the Central school presided and the prizes were awarded by Mrs. Carter, Pres. of the W. C. T. U.

The W. C. T. U. feels very grateful to those who helped make the contest a success, especially to the teachers without whose help it would have been impossible to secure such good results.

JULIUS IS A HUSTLER

Each week the Clintonville Tribune devotes a column or two to brief sketches of its business men. Here is one which concerns Julius Prenzlow, a former Rhinelander resident.

"Julius Prenzlow who has been in business here for the past 18 years is one of Clintonville's most enterprising business men. Commencing when a young man has by his energy and perseverance forged to the front not only in the retail meat business but has built a large packing house which is one of Clintonville's leading industries."

Fortune's "Darlings."

Bacon said something like this: "Fortune makes a fool whom she makes her darling." Please note that this refers to what we may call "freaks of fortune," not to wealth or eminence won by one's own energy or talents. Such can hardly be classed with the "darlings of fortune."

HOME LIFE OF THE BASS.

My Dear Buck:
You ask for a little info on the habits and home life of the black bass and when and where to find him. The bass, both large and small-mouthed, is a roamer, a lively, active hunter for the best place to gorge himself on the choice minnows, crawfish and helgmites, with a desert from the surface of the water of moths, flies and frogs. He is a great little traveler, and soon becomes big chief of the waters in which he lives. With such a varied menu, you will find him ever ready for a fight, equally eager for fly-hook, trolling-spoon, live bait or plug, right on the job to put up a struggle that will test your skill. You can fish for him night or day as he is a 24-hour feeder, but early morning and late afternoon is the surest time to get him right. He is an active rogue and continually rising from the bottom to the surface, at times jumping above the water in pursuit of his feed. He changes his home and feeding ground as the season passes. In the spring he is found in the shallow water in the streams and rivers, below rapids and riffles, as the water warms up he moves to the deep pools lying alongside of windfalls and logs, rocky ledges and weedy spots. During the hot summer he migrates to greater depths where the water is cool. Likewise in the lakes, the bass are "at home," in the spring, in the shallowest places, lying off of the sand bars and gravel formation, you can count on a good catch, close inshore in the very low water. A little later when the weeds, lilies and reeds are well grown you will find him in that vicinity. Both the large and small-mouthed bass are often found in the same lakes, but in different localities. The small-mouth favors the stony bars or shoals varying in depth from two to forty or fifty feet, while the large-mouth prefers the weeds and muddy bottoms.

East Wind Not So Bad.

Weather conditions have been blamed since the time of Noah for an empty stringer or reel. Rainy days, pleasant days, all kinds of winds and especially an east wind have been cursed as the cause of "fisherman's luck." Remember this, the bass keeps on filling the feed-bag just the same, and an east wind is better than no wind at all. You will get more bass when the surface of the water is slightly ruffled by a breeze than when fishing on a clear still day. Last year, at the opening of the season in Wisconsin, Jim and I landed 19 fine large-mouth bass from a little bay in something less than an hour, one casting while the other held the boat off shore. There was quite a stiff east wind blowing and the surface of the water was broken by a continuous roll of small waves. The bass ranged from two and one-half to five pounds and were caught between five and six o'clock, after we had fished all day with very poor luck. These fish, Buck, were caught with a white Wilson wobbler with a red head and with a Jamison Coaxer plug.

Bass Have Keen Sight.

While playing the game, don't for a minute forget that a bass has eyes, and he sure knows how to use them. Once he lumps you, your bait or lure are not for him, he has moved to other quarters. Don't stand in the boat and open up with a personally conducted sightseeing tour before you cast. He also hears, and often you will think that he is exceptionally keen in both of these senses. While in a boat bear in mind that sound vibrations carry farther in the water than you cast, and under water sounds mean a frightened fish. Save useless casts in a pool from which the fish have vanished, don't telegraph the bass before inviting him to come in out of the wet.

A bass will always gorge his food, but there is quite a difference in his mousing of baits. If you are fishing with live bait, a minnow, crawfish or frog, he will strike without much force and will mull the bait around in his mouth a bit before swallowing it, in fact with a live minnow he will turn it around in his mouth and swallow it headfirst. In this case do not strike him too quickly, but give him a little time to play the bait before striking. A bass handles a live bait somewhat similar to the play of a cat with a mouse it has caught. Many a time I have torn a minnow in half through striking too soon, having the pleasure of baiting again instead of landing the bass that had a half hold on my bait. If you are using a wooden minnow or plug, however, strike quickly right after the bass strikes, as he immediately discovers that it is not a choice morsel of food, and disconnects.

The Rhinelander Creamery & Produce company of this city has over 2000 shippers on its mailing list. The company receives cream shipments from as far east as Soo, Mich., and west to within 20 miles of St. Paul. During the past year the company received over 500,000 pounds of milk from Oneida county farmers, who sell the company milk for retail purposes. In 1916 the creamery manufactured 1,097,495 pounds of butter. The lowest price paid for butter fat was 23 cents in July and the highest price 45 cents in November or an average of 33 cents for the year.

THINK BODY WAS THROWN TO HOGS

From Pembine comes word that District Attorney Miller and Sheriff Hallen of Marinette county are investigating the death of Aden Alder, barn boss at the Sawyer-Goodman Lumber company's camp near Cataline. The supposition is that Alder was murdered and his body thrown to the hogs.

Alder was reported to have died from heart failure, while working around the barns, and it was supposed that hogs found the body.

Physicians who examined the body were inclined to doubt the murder theory.

TO PELICAN VOTERS:
When taxes are high it is the tendency of the people to blame the town board, but when taxes are low no credit is ever given to the board. The board must stand for all the abuse, but is never appreciated when it does a good turn for the people.

A Taxpayer.

TO THE PUBLIC
The cigar manufacturers of Rhinelander dispose of about ninety per cent. of their output in the saloons of Rhinelander and Oneida county and are therefore identified with the saloon interests.

On the other hand, the American Tobacco Company, better known as the "Trust" is a liberal contributor to the prohibition cause. And as soon as a city goes dry, they put in one or more cigar stores to dispose of their own products, cigars, cigarettes, and the "makins". They sell at any price they choose until they have driven the little fellow to the wall, and make up for it afterward. In doing this, they also strike a blow at Union Labor as the small shops are generally Union. While the large ones are not.

Mr. Citizen, if you were a small cigar manufacturer, how would you feel about it?

Respectfully,
J. M. BAKER,
One of the Wets.

Notice of Election

Office of County Clerk, March 22, 1917.

To the Electors of Oneida County:

Notice is hereby given that an election is to be held in the several towns, wards and election precincts in the county of Oneida, on the 3rd day of April, 1917, at which the following officers named below are to be chosen. The names of the candidates for each office to be voted for, whose nominations have been certified to or filed in this office, are given under the appropriate designation in the sample ballot below:

Sample Ballot for Judicial Election

INFORMATION TO VOTERS

The following instructions are given for the information and guidance to voters:

A voter upon entering the polling place and giving his name and residence, will receive a ballot from the ballot clerk which must have endorsed thereon the names or initials of both ballot clerks, and no other ballot can be used. Upon receiving his ballot, the voter must retire alone to a booth or compartment and prepare the same for voting. A ballot clerk may inform the voter as to the proper manner of marking a ballot, but he must not advise or indicate in any manner whom to vote for.

A voter shall mark his ballot by making a cross or mark at the right of the name of the candidates for whom he intends to vote or by inserting or writing in the name of the candidate.

If a voter wishes to vote for another person in place of a candidate whose name he has erased he may insert or write in the name of each person in one of the spaces in the blank column at the right.

The ballot should not be marked in any other manner. If the ballot be spoiled, it must be returned to the ballot clerk, who must issue another in its stead, but not more than three in all shall be issued to any one voter. Five minutes' time is allowed in booth to mark ballot. Unofficial ballots or memorandum to assist the voter in marking his ballot can be taken into the booth, and may be used to copy from. The ballot must not be shown so that any person can see how it has been marked by the voter.

After it is marked it should be folded so that the inside cannot be seen, but so that the printed indorsements and signatures of the ballot clerks on the outside may be seen. Then the voter should pass out of the booth or compartment, give his name to the inspector in charge of the ballot box and hand him his ballot to be placed in the box and pass out of the voting place.

A voter who declares to the presiding officer that he is unable to read, or that by reason of physical disability he is unable to mark his ballot, can have the assistance of one or two election officers in marking same, to be chosen by the voter; and if he declares that he is totally blind, he may be assisted by any person chosen by him from among the legal voters of the county. The presiding officer may administer an oath in his discretion as to such person's disability.

The following is a facsimile of the official ballot:

Wireless messages have been sent as far as 30 miles between airships and the navy yards. Instead of a mast, a copper wire 105 feet long is uncoiled from the airship. Those who are conducting the experiments think they will soon be able to send messages a distance of 100 miles or more.

With hundreds of Americans in Scandinavia anxious to return to their native land, the Norwegian steamship Kristianstad, which arrived at New York recently, was obliged to sail without taking passage for any of them owing to the concern felt by owners over the German submarine blockade. Officers of vessels estimated there were 1,000 Americans unable to reach home and the Kristianstad turned away 500 applicants, refusing also to carry mails. One American citizen boarded the Kristianstad, having arrived on the ship unseen and concealed himself until the vessel was out of sight of land. This stowaway was William E. Cadmus, a former Baptist clergyman, and now a New York exporter. When he made his reappearance on deck he was not disciplined as a stow-away, but enjoyed exclusive occupancy of the cabin. The ship sighted no submarines.

A company has been organized for mining graphite at Skaland, Senjen. The intention is to spend $40,000 on preliminary experiments. If the experiments are satisfactory a plant will be built for preparing the graphite for the market. The deposits are said to be the largest of the kind in Norway. A power station may be built at a neighboring waterfall which has a capacity of at least 4,000 horse power. The owner of the graphite beds is to receive $1,000 when regular operations are begun and 54 cents for every ton of pure graphite mined.

The police are looking for a man, believed to be Swedish-American, who bought a box of cigars in a Stockholm shop with a $50 bill, and was kind enough to accept even a lower rate of exchange for it than the regular market quotation. The reason for his willingness to make this sacrifice became apparent when the tobaccoist discovered that the bill had been issued by the Confederate States of America. Considerable Confederate money has been brought into Sweden lately, it consists mostly of $10 bills, but some are of higher denominations.

Sweden imported aniline from Germany before the war. As soon as this source was shut off by the war Swedish chemists began to make experiments with a view of producing this dyestuff at home, and they have succeeded to the extent that some Swedish factories are now using aniline produced in Sweden.

The ranks of the veterans of 1914 are thinning out very fast. Ten years ago there were some 300 in Randers and vicinity, last year there were 37, and this year only 20. The right of American armed merchantmen to enter neutral ports of Europe is the subject of negotiations now being carried on by diplomatic representatives of the United States. A company has been organized for mining graphite at Skaland, Senjen. The intention is to spend $40,000 on preliminary experiments. If the experiments are satisfactory a plant will be built for preparing the graphite for the market. The deposits are said to be the largest of the kind in Norway. A power station may be built at a neighboring waterfall which has a capacity of at least 4,000 horse power. The owner of the graphite beds is to receive $1,000 when regular operations are begun and 54 cents for every ton of pure graphite mined.

The police are looking for a man, believed to be Swedish-American, who bought a box of cigars in a Stockholm shop with a $50 bill, and was kind enough to accept even a lower rate of exchange for it than the regular market quotation. The reason for his willingness to make this sacrifice became apparent when the tobaccoist discovered that the bill had been issued by the Confederate States of America. Considerable Confederate money has been brought into Sweden lately, it consists mostly of $10 bills, but some are of higher denominations.

"Old Abel" of Buksnes, Lofoten, is said to break the records as the oldest living person in Norway. He is claimed to be one hundred and twenty years old. He still takes care of himself, so that others do not need to spend any extra time tending to him. He married his third wife when he was ninety years old. She is still living and is ninety years old. A couple of years ago she had to be taken to the hospital, and on that occasion he made a trip to the hospital to see her, footing it both ways the same day, though the distance was three miles. It is claimed that "Old Abel" has never been sick. His life has always been that of a fisherman. He can still remember experiences from a trip he made with a schooner that carried fish to Bergen in 1814.

Banks of Norway and Sweden are investing their American bank balances in bonds of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland. One New York institution received Saturday an order for $1,500,000 of these securities. In the case of the transfer of funds for the purchase of bonds here the investor makes a profit on the exchange, in addition to the profit on the bonds, provided, of course that the funds are sent back at a time when exchange rates are better than normal. At the present time Scandinavian exchange is at a premium in New York and dollars are at a discount in Christiania and Stockholm.

Lauritz Nilsen, a teacher at Mandal, is well known in southern Norway on account of his enthusiastic work for the success of missions. He publishes a newspaper of his own, in which the following occurred a few weeks ago: "A splendid mission wind seems to be blowing here at the present time, and the contributions come rolling like the waves of the ocean. Last Friday I met a man who handed me $50. A few hours earlier I had received $27 from another man. But the next day was to bring me still more. Two women came to me and handed me $254. Later in the day I received $50."

SWEDEN.

A. H. Petralin of Minneapolis recently said: "From the beginning of the war I have held that the allies would win only with a free Russia and a united Scandinavia. Now we have this glorious news from Russia and Scandinavian unity will inevitably follow release of Russia from bureaucratic control. It has been reported that Sweden was pro-German and Norway pro-ally. That has been true of Sweden because of political necessity. In spirit the two have been united in sympathy with the great war of democracy against autocracy. Sweden feared autocratic Russia and hence looked upon Germany, the enemy of Russia, as a bar to Russian encroachment. With Russia free, ruled by her own people, Sweden will have nothing to fear from her. She may let her heart speak out."

The mysterious broken and sealed up trunk which started with ex-Ambassador Bernstorff from New York to Copenhagen on the Scandinavian American liner Frederik VIII, has arrived in London. It was taken at once to the foreign office to be opened in the presence of the Swedish minister. This trunk has figured extensively in various rumors circulated in the United States. Apparently it was at first dispatched sealed with the seals of the Swedish embassy in Washington. Later the trunk was discovered to have been opened, the original seals removed and replaced with the seals of the New York Swedish consul. Consulate seals are not exempt from breakage as are diplomatic marks.

Olof and Anna Charlotta Anderson of Bratton, Solberga parish, Bohuslan, have celebrated their diamond wedding. They have always enjoyed good health during their sixty years of married life. Olof was only twenty-one years old when he became captain of a sailing vessel, plying between Goteborg and Vener seaports, and he has followed the sea ever since. He always enjoyed the confidence of the owners of the ships which he commanded. Of living descendants the old couple have nine children, 61 grandchildren and one great-grandchild. Most of these are living in the neighborhood, so that they may help and comfort their aged ancestors.

Sweden imported aniline from Germany before the war. As soon as this source was shut off by the war Swedish chemists began to make experiments with a view of producing this dyestuff at home, and they have succeeded to the extent that some Swedish factories are now using aniline produced in Sweden.

The police are looking for a man, believed to be Swedish-American, who bought a box of cigars in a Stockholm shop with a $50 bill, and was kind enough to accept even a lower rate of exchange for it than the regular market quotation. TRIPOLI

The Tri-County Agricultural High school and the Tripoli Graded School Notes.

On Friday evening the High school students held a frolic. The evening was spent in playing a variety of games, closing with a delicious supper. Covers were laid for forty. The rooms were prettily decorated in orange and green and in the center of the dining room a large basket filled with evergreens hung. A small candle burned beside each plate and a large one at the ends of the tables. This event is the first of its kind in the history of our school and its success will make it a frequent event. Not only do such parties afford some good amusement for all of the students but it arouses their enthusiasm and ambition.

The reviews class will take their final examination in arithmetic Wednesday. They will then commence to review grammar.

Lines to Be Remembered.

Today is your day and mine; the only day we have; the day in which we play our part. What our part may signify in the great whole we may not understand; but we are here to play it, and now is our time. This we know: It is a part of action, not of whining. It is a part of love, not cynicism. It is for us to express love in terms of human helpfulness. This we know, for we have learned from sad experience that any other course of life leads toward decay and waste. —David Starr Jordan.

Perfectly Comprehensible.

The following speech was made by a lawyer on behalf of his client whose cow had been killed by a train: "If the train had been run as it should have been run, or if the bell had been rung as it should have been rung, or if the whistle had been blown as it should have been blown, both of which they did neither, the cow would not have been injured when she was killed."

THE ELEVATOR STUCK

By J. K. WARD.

Mr. Frank E. Clark was introduced to Miss May Orr at a gathering at the house of mutual friends, and so the introduction was eminently proper.

Mr. Clark was twenty-three years old and held an official position in the electric light company of the town. Miss May was two years younger, and was a daughter of a well-to-do contractor. The two young people appeared to take a liking to each other at first sight, and, when the evening was over, Mr. Clark was made happy by receiving permission to call at her father's house. He availed himself of the privilege and in the course of the next three months he had become a steady caller. There was no engagement yet, but the father and mother liked him and showed their liking, and he considered the battle as won.

How little we know what the future has in store for us! One morning Mr. Clark woke up, whistling a tune and feeling happy, but as he glanced at the morning paper, before going down to his office, he felt his hair trying to climb on end. There was a sensational half-column about Frank E. Clark, the gist of which read:

"A young man named Frank E. Clark got drunk and terrorized part of the Fourth ward last night, and was not arrested until the police had made free use of their clubs. He first appeared at the corner of Welcome and Duane streets, and there he smashed in a pane of glass and began whooping and yelling like a Sioux Indian. He smashed into other windows, caused a horse to run away, and was carrying under his arm an automaton, which he had picked up in front of a dressmaker's show, when the police descended upon him."

About the time Mr. Clark was reading this and gasping for breath, Mr. Orr, the contractor, was also reading it and feeling various feelings. When he had finished his reading, he called to his daughter May and put the paper into her hands. When she had also read the article, he sneeringly exclaimed:

"Nice sort of a young man to come into our family! I want no more of him around this house!"

"No one wants any more of him around!" was the indignant reply. "He may call and try to explain, but no explanations will be accepted. I am glad I found him out before it was too late."

Young Mr. Clark was sure that the newspaper would fall into the hands of the girl he loved, and it was a long day for him. He meant to call that evening and see what damage had been done and make full explanations. He was at the contractor's house half an hour before the usual time, and his ring at the door was answered by Miss May's father himself. The old man was looking very grim, and was all prepared to say:

"What the devil brings you here, young man? I should think you would be ashamed to show your face among decent people! Get right off these steps before I apply the boot to you!"

Mr. Clark not only got off the steps, but off the entire premises. He could have explained the matter, then and there, but he rather lost his presence of mind with the shadow of the contractor's number ten shoe hanging over him. He went away to write a letter to Miss May, which he sent by a messenger boy; but it was returned unopened. He lost considerable time seeking to meet the girl in the street, but they did not meet. Two weeks passed—weeks of almost mortal agony to the young man. Then Providence gave him his chance. He had business on one of the floors of a skyscraper. Miss May Orr had business on one of the floors of that same building. He followed her into an elevator, waiting to ascend, and neither recognized the other until the cage had traversed a distance of three floors and a half. There it suddenly stopped. The boy who was running it called out: "Gosh hang it all; we are stuck!"

There was no disputing the fact. He pulled on the rope and the cage did not move. He sighed and looked helpless, but that did not mend matters. It was then that Miss May and Mr. Clark recognized each other. They both gave a sudden start and the girl turned her back on the young man. He was a young man to seize golden opportunities. This was one, and he seized it.

"Miss Orr, you are doing me a great injustice," he began, and it did not encourage him when she replied:

"I will not hear a single word from you!"

"My name," he continued, "is Frank E. Clark. There happens to be no less than five Frank E. Clarks in the city directory. I have had the thing looked up and it was Frank E. Clark, the blacksmith, who raised that disgraceful row. The paper that published the affair is to make an apology tomorrow. I was never drunk in my life. I never smashed a window. I never carried an automaton around under my arm. I could have explained all this in five minutes, but you would not let me justify myself."

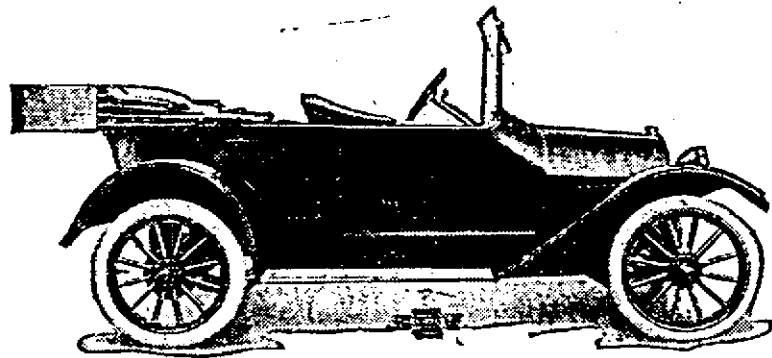

Miss May turned her face to him, but for a minute did not speak. His tones were sincere and convincing, but she did not want to give in too easily. Therefore, she said:

"Very well, Mr. Clark, you can call this evening and bring a city directory with you."

And the elevator boy gave the rope a pull and the elevator returned to its duty.

Perry McClintock, agent for the Soo line at Armstrong Creek, Alex Wais, section foreman, Joseph Kolchewski and Louis Wais, are under arrest charged with stealing merchandise from Soo line cars. For a long time cars have been looted at Armstrong Creek and suspicion finally fell on the four men. Sheriff Martin Georgeson of Forest county, who ferreted out the mystery, made the arrests.

It is said that the sheriff discovered the place where the stolen goods were sequestered and there was enough merchandise to stock a small store.

The quartette were taken to Grandon and their hearing set for today.

EPIDEMIC OF RUST

Heavy Losses May Be Caused by This Disease.

STATUS OF TROUBLE GIVEN

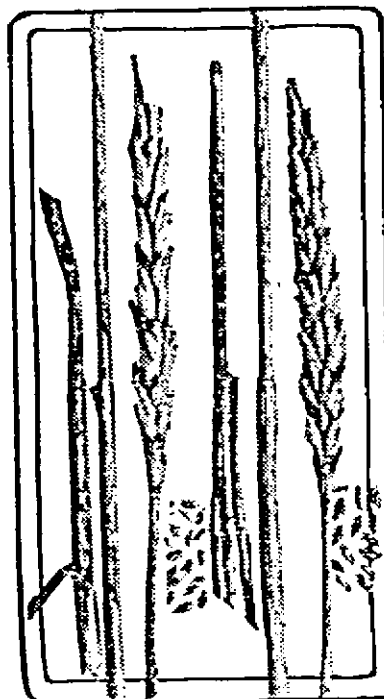

Each of Common Cereals Including Corn Subject to Attack—Grasses Have Marked Influence on Prevalence of Rust.

(By H. B. HUMPHREY, Cereal Pathologist, United States Department of Agriculture.)

A very serious epidemic of stem rust ("black rust") of wheat which occurred the past season, especially in the spring wheat states, has forcibly brought to light the heavy losses which may be caused by this disease. The following is a brief description of the present status of our knowledge of the cereal rusts and of the efforts which are being made, especially by the department of agriculture, to investigate and combat them.

Kind of Rusts.

Each of the common cereals including corn is subject to the attack of rust. As viewed by the farmer, this rust looks somewhat similar in all cases. In reality, however, there are several different kinds of rust which are distinct from each other and which vary in their virulence of attack. Wheat, for instance, is known to have in this country three kinds of rust: leaf rust, stem rust, and a yellow or stripe rust. Oats is commonly afflicted with both a leaf rust, sometimes also called "crown rust," and a stem rust. Barley and rye also have leaf and stem rusts. On corn, however, only one kind of rust is found, and this is rarely serious.

The oat rusts are very commonly present and sometimes cause severe epidemics in certain out-growing states. Of the wheat rusts the most important one at the present time is the stem rust, commonly called the "black rust," which was the cause of the epidemic of rust in the spring wheat states this year. The leaf rust of wheat is almost always present every year and is familiar to most farmers as "red rust," and while it undoubtedly does at least a slight damage, it seldom if ever causes a severe loss. The yellow, or stripe rust of wheat, has only recently been discovered in this country. It also attacks barley and certain wild grasses and has been found in the western part of the United States, but not as yet east of the Rocky mountains except in eastern Wyoming. It is a common rust in Europe and considered a serious disease. If it continues to spread in this country, and if it proves as serious an enemy to wheat here as it has in Europe, it is possible that it will add materially to the rust troubles of our cereals.

Grasses as Rust Plants.

The life histories of the rusts are sometimes complex. This is especially true of the most important of the wheat rusts; namely, the stem rust. It may pass a part of its existence on an ornamental shrub known as barberry, Berberis vulgaris, where it produces rust spores in May or June. These rust spores may infect wheat or other cereals. The stem rust may also in its red and black stages live on many common wild grasses. It is also a fact that the stem rusts of the other cereals may also pass their spring stage on the barberry plant. Although the rust may live over the winter on grass plants or may be brought up in the early spring from the South without the intervention of barberry plants, nevertheless, barberry plants serve as an active means of spreading the rust in a very vigorous fashion. The common barberry should not be permitted in the neighborhood of any grain-growing farms and, in fact, it would best be eliminated entirely from the grain-growing states at least. The smooth-leaved barberry, Berberis thunbergii, called also "Japanese barberry," is not attacked by the rust and may be safely planted.

Rusted Seed.

Since the cereal rusts may also live on grass plants, a considerable study has been undertaken to find out the exact relations between the rusts found on wild grasses and those on cereals. The matter is found to be somewhat complex. There can be no doubt that the grasses have a marked influence on the prevalence of rust, and that wheat rust epidemics are considerably promoted by the common wild grasses. The different rusts are found, however, only on certain kinds of grasses and these relationships, together with the possible effect of the grasses on the virulence of an epidemic, are now being investigated.

Rusted Seed.

Another extremely important question under investigation is that of rust in the seed. It has been known for some time that in badly-rusted fields the rust is often present even on the tips of the wheat seeds. It has been thought by some that this rust might be transmitted by the seed to the young seedling and thus start the epidemic again in the following spring. Evidence from field and greenhouse experiments conducted up to the present time does not support this view, but conclusive evidence is dependent on further investigation.

As far as is known at the present time it is safe to take seed from a rusted field. It is necessary, however, that the lightweight, shrunken kernels be removed and only the heaviest seed obtainable used from such a field. Much of the wheat from this year's crop is of very poor quality, and should be thoroughly fanned and screened. Special effort should be made this year to provide for good seed wheat for next year. Germination tests, of course, should be made.

Co-Operative Work.

A number of state experiment stations are vitally interested in the rust work and are co-operating with the cereal pathologist of the department. The stripe rust in the western states, its distribution and occurrence, together with its life history and varietal relations, are at present under investigation.

There is also considerable co-operative work being done on the variety testing and breeding of cereals for rust resistance. The major portion of this work is devoted to wheat, but oats is also receiving some attention. In this work rust nurseries are maintained at four experiment stations where each year an artificial epidemic is secured, thus allowing for continuous rust records on any given variety, and also insuring the most severe rust conditions possible. Work on spring wheat is in progress at the Minnesota station; at the Iowa station on spring oats; at the Kansas station on soft winter wheats; and at the Tennessee station on soft winter wheats and winter oats. The field trials on rust resistance are supplemented by greenhouse tests, where both seedling and mature plants are artificially inoculated with rust and degree of infection noted.

Testing and Breeding.

The results on the variety testing for resistance up to the present time have demonstrated several general facts. None of the common, or so-called bread spring wheats, is to any useful degree immune to the stem rust attack. The most commonly grown of these susceptible varieties of spring wheats are the Fife's, Blue-stems, and bearded wheats, including such varieties as Marquis, Power Fife, Haynes Bluestem, Prelude and Preston. On the other hand, it has been abundantly demonstrated that certain varieties of durum and emmer are extremely resistant to the rust in contrast to the common spring wheats. This fact has been very clearly demonstrated in the rust epidemic of the past season, where the common wheats, as well as many varieties of durum wheats were very heavily rusted, while other adjacent rows of durum wheat were practically clean of rust. In the field many farmers suffered severe loss in their durum crop on account of the rust, while others obtained yields of two to three times as many bushels of better grade wheat than was obtained from the common bread wheats in the same vicinity. This demonstrates very strongly the necessity for planting, where durum wheat is successfully grown, only the resistant types.

Fertilizers and Rusts.

The results, obtained particularly at the Minnesota station in determining the effect of artificial fertilizers on rusts indicate that soil fertilizers do not play an important part either for or against resistance in a real field epidemic, and that as a factor in farm practice, the relations between the application of commercial fertilizers and the rust can largely be disregarded. It seems highly improbable that any control of rust through the application of any reasonable amount of commercial fertilizers can ever be hoped for.

Control Measures.

It is well known that seed treatment has no effect on the rust. Soil treatment is also almost ineffective, except insofar as good soil practice will put the seedbed in the best condition and promote the most rapid and vigorous growth of the wheat plant.

Of course, spraying of grain fields is not only impracticable but useless as well. Certain farm practices, as for instance the use of well-drained land, however, should be followed in order that the crop may be given the best possible chance to escape an epidemic or to endure it.

Early maturing varieties on well-prepared land sown as early as the season as possible, may assist in escaping the rust if the attack is late.

There can be no logical reason for maintaining common barberry plants anywhere in the vicinity of grain fields. Certainly as new ones should be planted and the old ones should be removed.

THE RETURNS FROM YOUR INVESTMENT.

Do You Know of Any Tax Paying Bigger Dividends Than the Road Tax?

Do you know any tax which you pay to the State of Wisconsin, which in its very nature should and does bring you bigger returns, returns that you can see and know you are getting, than the road tax, we mean for state aid highways?

The State Railroad Commission, The State Industrial Commission, The State Tax Commission are financed and kept in operation by taxes. You are getting returns from the work they do, but you will admit it is difficult for you to put your finger on the returns to you. They are indirect and remote.

The Wisconsin University is supported by taxation. It is delivering the goods, but except for those who attend the University or avail themselves of its services directly, it is difficult again to put your finger on the direct result to you. The same applies to the State Normal Schools. The same applies to numerous other activities of the state—splendid activities, which are doing a great work, but where the results are so distributed that you are unable to see them.

It is different with the highway tax. We are not speaking of local highway work, but of state aid highway roads. Every time you drive over these roads, you are getting the returns from your taxes, you are seeing the results. They save you in time; they save you in effort and trouble; they lessen the wear and tear on your team and vehicle, or your automobile; they enable you to carry a bigger load, which results in fewer trips to market; they enable you to drive to town when the market is good, not when the roads are good and the market bad; they bring your children nearer to school; they lift yourself and family nearer the church; they move you nearer to your neighbors and give you an opportunity to enjoy the social life; they increase the value of your farms.

All these things are before you. They can be seen and realized. You don't have to investigate, nor study to find out your returns. Your own pleasure and comfort and profit tell the story. Do you know of any other tax that comes home to you so directly as this?

A common phrase is "What are they doing with all this money down at Madison?" The road that goes by your door or leads to market tells you every day what is being done with your state highway tax. They show you the returns from your investment.

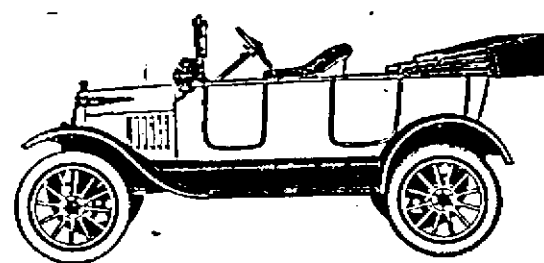

Agricultural Problem Solved.

A close study of soils and crops shows that the relation is purely natural, in that crops showing a preference for a certain soil is due entirely to the demands of these crops for a definite amount of water and warmth. Plant food is a secondary consideration, and as this can easily be supplied by man the problem is solved.

Influence on Character.

In the molding of character nothing matters so much as influence. It is the heart of all education, the inner secret of home and of school. More than any wit or genius in the values there of simple goodness, "moral thoughtfulness." Surround a life with the rays and dormant goodness will see it come to birth.

Buy Your Ford Now!

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

A farmer buys his seed in advance of sowing time.

Every-one orders their suits made in advance of the day they want to use them.

Why not apply the same reasoning to the purchase of a FORD car?

Everybody wants their car on May 1st, so it is reasonable to suppose if everyone holds out until that date, thousands will be disappointed.

Seeing the Other Side.

We know a man who has worked all his life for others; for his parents for awhile, then for a wife and children and some of her kin. The world rates him as moderately successful, but his own actual monetary compensation has just about amounted to board and clothes. And at home he hears some complaint because he doesn't do better. You hear much of the joy of service, but sometimes there are two sides.—Atchison (Kan.) Globe.

Look for the Best.

You will find it less easy to uproot faults than to choke them by gaining virtues. Do not think of your faults; still less of others' faults; in every person who comes near you look for what is good and strong; honor that; rejoice in it; and your faults will drop off, like dead leaves, when their time comes.—Ruskin.

To Cure a Cold.

Remove the seeds of one medium-size grapefruit, put the pulp into one quart of cold water, and boil slowly until it is reduced to one pint. Strain and sweeten to taste. Drink one-half the quantity hot just after retiring at night and the remainder cold in the morning. Repeat the second night if necessary.

Gold in History.

Gold was known from the earliest historic times, and is mentioned in the eleventh verse of the second chapter of Genesis. At first it was chiefly used for ornaments. The trade of the goldsmith is mentioned in the fourth verse of the seventeenth chapter of Judges, in connection with the overlaying of idols with gold leaf.

Some Things to Be Shunned.

It is better to be cold than dead. Never run an automobile engine long behind closed doors. Never use a gas heater that is not fitted with an adequate vent into an open fire. Never go to sleep in a room leaving a gas heater burning. Always leave a window open in every room occupied by sleeping persons.

RHINELANDER PROOF

Should Convince Every Rhinelander Reader. The frank statement of a neighbor, telling the merits of a remedy. Bids you pause and believe. The same endorsement. By some stranger far away. Commands no belief at all. Here's a Rhinelander case. A Rhinelander citizen, testifies. Read and be convinced.

Frank Rogers, cabinet maker, 730 Wabash St., Rhinelander, says: "My back ached and I had pains through my loins. My kidneys were weak too. I finally got Doan's Kidney Pills at Reardon's Drug Store and they gave me great relief."

OVER TWO YEARS LATER Mr. Rogers said: "I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills off and on since I recommended them and have always found odd results. I think just as highly of them now as I did when I gave my former endorsement."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Rogers has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.
